HONGKONG, TUESDAY, MAY 25, 1869.

THE FORMOSAN DIFFICULTY.

As misrepresentation is doing its best to induce the British public to believe that the recent troubles in Formosa were entirely owing to the intemperate zeal of missionaries, we propose to subjoin a list of the acts complained of, that the unprejudiced may at least judge between Lord Clarendon and the Consular and Naval Officers who have so unjustly fallen under his censure. While missionary complaints formed a part of those generally alleged, the record will show that were by no means the cause of the trouble.
Clarendon has confused the early commis-sionary made by the Presbyterian missionaries, with the later events which necessitated an appeal to force.

The record begins somewhere about June 1865, when complaints were made that the Medical Mission at Tai-wan-foo was much harassed. Placards were posted accusing the doctor of horrible crimes, &c. The native authorities refused to afford protection. Tai-wan-foo was a treaty port.

2.—A chapel near Takao was looted and partially destroyed about December, 1866. No redress of any sort could be obtained.

3.—In the beginning of April, 1868, a considerable purchase of camphor had been made for Messrs. Elles & Co., to the value of $6,000, and was accomplished in Wu-chai, a place considerably to the North of Tai-wan-foo; this camphor was bought in consistency with the terms of the Treaty. In spite of this, however, it was suddenly laid hold of at Wu-chai, and forcibly carried off by the agents of the Taotai.

4.—During this same month the officials allowed and encouraged most infamous reports, regarding the proceedings of both Protestant and Roman Catholic Missionaries, and their converts, to spread unchecked throughout the whole South of Formosa, until the native underlings were able without fear to lead parties to the destruction of all the chapels within their reach.

5.—In the beginning of April they sacked and burnt a Roman Catholic Chapel at Koo-kian; on the 11th of the same month, they sacked and tore down the Protestant Chapel at Pateron, the district city. On the same day, they brutally assaulted a Protestant Catechist in the streets of Pateron, who barely succeeded in escaping their knives; the district Mandarin coolly shut him up in prison, and he was not released for seven weeks.

6.—On the 24th of April, another Protestant Catechist was set upon in a village, only 5 miles from the Consulate at Takao, was murdered in open day and on the public street, his body cut in pieces, and his heart eaten by some of his murderers; at the north gate of the old city, close by. In Pateron, the houses of the adherents of the Protestant Church were broken into and sacked, the women driven out to the streets and the males of the party compelled to flee for their lives to Takao.

7.—The Roman Catholics in Taiwanfoo were, in the beginning of May, once more outraged, their premises again destroyed, and one of their number bamboozed and imprisoned by the district magistrate of Taiwanfoo.

8.—In June Mr. Hardie, the agent of Messrs. Tait & Co., at Taiwanfoo, was suddenly attacked by one of the official servants of the Lekiu office, while on his way from Takao to Taiwanfoo. This man suddenly came behind him and stabbed him forcibly in the side of the chest with a knife. Mr. H. had to defend himself from several attacks of this man with the knife, and, with great difficulty, succeeded in saving his life. Until this hour this man remains unpunished.

9.—Mr. Gibson forwarded despatches to the various Yamen, announcing his assumption of the Taiwan Consulate on the 1st Feb. On the 14th July, a despatch was received at the Consulate from the Taotai, refusing to recognise Mr. Gibson as Acting British Consul, and it was not until Lord Scott arrived with H. M.'s forces, about the
